Continuing with the theme of intel members under Trump manufacturing fake evidence of “white supremacist terrorists” engaging in or wanting to engage in violence, the FBI has upped the ante and the corporate media has swallowed it as usually. I mean, what did you expect from millionaires on TV whose networks actively hire warpigs and spooks? This time, National Justice has the story:

> The FBI announced charges against two members of the “Boogaloo Bois” yesterday for allegedly attempting to provide material support for Palestinian resistance group Hamas.
>
> 30-year-old Michael Solomon and 22-year-old Benjamin Ryan Teeter were approached by an FBI informant pretending to be a member of Hamas. The informant then entrapped Teeter and Solomon in a ridiculous and bogus terror plot. Both individuals have been active supporters of anti-white race riots in the Minnesota area that followed the death of George Floyd, but the FBI does not appear interested in prosecuting their actual criminal activity in this regard.
>
> But at least in the case of Teeter, his own words disprove the contrived narrative. An investigation by sleuth @cursedsalad found that Teeter is in fact a violent “anti-racist” who supports “antifa” and describes himself as a left-wing anarchist. According to a tweet sent on July 25th, Teeter called for the “hunting of white supremacists.”

Clearly, these two men are super duper not into white racialism, much less the far right, whatever that means. But it gets even better. The FBI tried to get them to support Hamas, which is something they’ve expressed interest in. What’s crazy is that Hamas had to come out and deny that cringe.
